

Examples of APA style, 6th Edition

There are many more types of resources than we have room for in this handout. For more examples and complete information, use the following resources from the APA:

Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association (6th ed.). (2010). Washington, DC: American Psychological Association. Call number: REF BF 76.7 .P83 2010

Reference Examples are found on pages 193-224 in the manual.

References in the text of your paper

(See pages 174-179 in the manual for complete details.)

APA style requires that you cite the author and publication year of a reference in the text of your paper. One or both of these elements may be in parentheses. Direct quotations also require the page number. If both author and year are in the text, no additional information is needed. The full citation will follow in the reference list at the end of the paper. Here are a few examples from the manual.

- Kisangau, Lyaruu, Hosea, and Joseph (2007) found...
- Early onset results in a more persistent and severe course (Kessler, 2003).
- She stated, "The 'placebo effect'...disappeared when behaviors were studied in this manner" (Miele, 1993, p. 276).
- In 2003, Kessler's study of epidemiological samples showed that...

Reference list at the end of the paper

(See pages 180-183 and 193-224 in the manual.)

The heading on the page of sources should be "References." References should be in a hanging indent format, meaning that the first line of each reference is set flush left and subsequent lines are indented. Double-space the entire list. Alphabetize the list by first author's last name. If there is no author given, start with the first significant word in the title. In titles, capitalize only the first word of the title and subtitle, and proper nouns. Examples are from the Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association.
